In to Recover His $20.

James Sheridan and Emily Griffin two well known characters in police circles, were arrested yesterday for working a sort of badger game. The Griffin woman had rooms at 215 Franklin avenue. Sheridan was her copper. Their game was to allure a drunken or unsophisticated man to the house and rob him, if the woman could induce him to remain over night. The victim in such cases will as a rule suffer his loss rather than expose firmself

Thus the operators of the game expect to escape punishment.

One of the victims of the Sheridan-Griffin game, however, was an excep-tion to the rule. He is Arthur Lumbert an old farmer from Clark's Summit. Lumbert was in the city last Friday and got pretty full. Sheridan ran across him and enticed him to the Griffin wo-man's apartments. When he woke up in the morning his wad amounting to $20 was missing. The woman denied, of course, that she knew anything of course, that she knew anything about it and suggested that the man who brought him there might have robbed him. When he sobered up he thought the whole thing all over and came to the conclusion that he had been the victim of a game in which both his friends of Friday night figured. placed the matter in Alderman Millar's hands and yesterday, after the officers of his court had secured con-vincing evidence, he had the pair ar-rested. They were held in $500 each for court and in default were committed.

Sheridan is the individual who, with Thomas Fitzpatrick, went to the peni-tentiary for assaulting and attempting to rob old Patrick Wynn, about eight years ago. They were members of the then famous dead line gang of Dodge-town and for this, as much as for the immediate crime, they were given ten years apiece by Judge Hand. Through the efforts of Attorney Richard J. Beamish, Sheridan's sentence was cut down and on this account and for rea-son of good behavior he only served five years and seven months. Fitzpat-rick was released last April, after serving a little-over eight years.

The Griffin woman is one of the frequent sofourners at the county jail, for thirty day stretches. She claims that she and Sheridan were married in Williamsport recently, but he will not admit it.

Then it goes along and tells what it purports in language and orthography away back before Chaucer's time. The sheriff, if he finds Mr. Morton, will serve a copy of it on him, and certify to the court of Edinburgh that he did so. Mrs. Morton is suing for a divorce and alimony.
